

ABSTRACT

The use of ethylene oxide for the purpose of providing an item substantially free of DNA is provided. Methods of treating items to render them substantially DNA free are also provided. A method of verifying the substantially DNA free status of an item is also 5 provided. A method for producing items is also detailed in which one or more of the products are analysed to establish whether those and/or other product have DNA associated with them after treatment.